Meet Lauren!

We're delighted to introduce Lauren to you as part of the Gaia Education team.

Learner Pathways Manager
Learner Key Worker
English & History Teacher

Lauren is our Learner Pathways Manager, Learner Key Worker and English and History Teacher. Her role is to help learners find the right path at Gaia, making sure they are well matched with an educator or group setting that suits their individual needs, interests and ways of learning.

As an English and History Teacher with eight years of teaching experience, Lauren brings an understanding of the challenges young people can face in education. She is neurodivergent herself and was diagnosed with ADHD at the age of 24. This lived experience is at the heart of why she does what she does, shaping the understanding and empathy she brings to supporting learners.

Lauren is passionate about making sure every learner knows they matter and belong. Having experienced some of these challenges herself, she understands how important it is for young people to feel seen, understood and supported. She wants learners to know that they can succeed in life while doing things in their own way.

For Lauren, this means giving learners space to explore their interests, recognise their strengths and shine in the areas that matter to them. Through her English and History teaching, her work on learner pathways and her role as a key worker, she aims to help each young person find a learning experience where they can build confidence and move forward as themselves.
