Meet Natalie!

We're delighted to introduce Natalie to you as part of the Gaia Education team, teaching English, History, PSHE and Primary Humanities.

Secondary English & History,
PSHE & Primary Humanities Educator.

Natalie is a nurturing and empowering educator with over 15 years of experience in tutoring, teaching and supporting neurodivergent learners and those with special educational needs (SEN) and social, emotional and mental health (SEMH) needs. She has taught online, in secondary schools and in an FE College.

Natalie taught History for over a decade in mainstream secondary schools and became Head of Department. At Exeter College, she lectured in A-Level History, taught GCSE English Language and tutored within the faculty of Foundation, Learning and Inclusion. Natalie tutored English online and in person as alternative provision, which included supporting learners in foster and care home settings. She recently examined GCSE English Language for AQA.

Empathetic, inclusive and versatile, Natalie takes a personalised, holistic approach that encourages curiosity and helps learners build confidence. She is passionate about inclusive educational opportunities, literacy and the positive difference online education can make to transforming young people's lives.

Natalie is proud of her Welsh roots and loves returning home to Wales to visit family. She lives in Exeter with her husband and their two daughters and enjoys family walks along the Devon coastal path with their Fox Red labrador, Alfie. Natalie is a dedicated mother and educator and finds balance through Pilates and yoga. She also enjoys live music, reading historical novels, browsing charity shops and collecting mid-century ceramics.
